New Lenox Residents Find Body of Suicide

Sunday forenoon Mr. and Mrs. Albert Latz and Robt. Reiter of New Lenox were driving on the road southwest of New Lenox, half a mile south of the EJE railroad, when they noticed a car parked along the highway near the Jacobs home. They noticed an overcoat lying under the car and saw a hand sticking out from underneath.

Upon investigation, they found the body of a man covered with an overcoat and from all indications he had committed suicide by placing the coat over the muffler of the car and inhaling the fumes from the exhaust pipe.

The coroner's office was notified and the body was removed to Joliet where it was identified as that of Glen Wadsworth, aged 54 years, an engineer on the EJE railroad for some time. Later it was learned that following an accident last month in which two women were killed when they drove their car into the side of a train that Mr. Wadsworth was on in Lake Zurich the accident prayed on his mind to such an extent that he had hallucinations that police were searching for him which of course was not the case.

This thought it is presumed caused him to commit suicide. He is survived by his wife Mildred, 5 sons and 5 daughters, mother Mrs. Clara Wadsworth, two brothers and 1 sister and 4 grand children. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon.

TINLEY METHODISTS TO HOLD NOVENA

The first Novena, on record was held by the disciples of Jesus when they fulfilled Jesus' request to remain in Jerusalem, until they had received power. Nine days were spent in prayer, and then came Pentecost, when mighty spiritual happenings took place.

The word Novena comes from the Latin word meaning nine. A Novena is a series of nine devotional services for some definite purpose. To aid individuals in deepening their spiritual and devotional life, the idea of a Novena is most helpful for the sincere worshipper covenants with his Lord to attend nine consecutive services of worship.

Millions More To Pay Taxes On '41 Income

Government Offers Aid to Those Who Will File This Year.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In less than two months millions of citizens of the United States are going to be paying their income tax for 1941. It is also a known fact, because of the lowering of the income tax base, very many more people are going to be paying or filing an income tax that didn't do so for 1940. Following are some hints and suggestions that will help you when filling out your income tax form:

WHO MUST FILE A RETURN? Every single person having a gross income of $750 or more; every married person, not living with husband or wife, and having a gross income of $750 or more; and married persons living with husband or wife, who have an aggregate gross income of $1,500 or more.

WHEN MUST RETURNS BE FILED? For the calendar year 1941, on or before March 16, 1942. For the fiscal year, on or before the 15th day of the third month following the close of the fiscal year.

WHERE AND WITH WHOM MUST INCOME TAX RETURNS BE FILED? In the internal-revenue district in which the person lives or has his chief place of business, and with the collector of internal revenue.

HOW DOES ONE MAKE OUT HIS INCOME TAX RETURN? By following the detailed instructions given on the income tax blanks, Form 1040 and Form 1040A (optional simplified form).

WHAT IS THE TAX RATE? A normal tax of 4 per cent on the amount of the net income in excess of the allowable credits against net income.

DON'T prepare your income tax return until you carefully read and understand the instructions accompanying the forms. Make out a work-sheet and check it with the instructions before filling in the forms.

DON'T, if your gross income is $3,000 or less and is wholly from salary, wages, or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, annuities, or royalties, file your return on Form 1040 without carefully considering the option to file the simplified Form 1040A, since the filing of your return on either form in such case constitutes an election which prevents you from filing an amended return on the other form.

DON'T overlook the fact that for the majority of taxpayers the tax for 1941 will be two or three times as much as for 1940 and that it is important for you to save out of your weekly or monthly earnings, or otherwise provide, a sufficient amount to pay your tax when it becomes due. If any installment is not paid when due, the whole amount of the tax unpaid is required to be paid upon notice and demand from the collector.

A very arresting fact in the 1941 income tax law is the lowering of the personal exemption from $800 to $750 for a single person, and from $2,000 to $1,500 for a married person or the head of a family, and the change in the basis for determining liability for a return.

It matters not if the return discloses that, by reason of allowable deductions, or the credit for personal exemption or for a dependent or dependents, the individual has no tax to pay; the gross income of such persons must be reported to the government.

The experience of former years shows that the bureau is always swamped with late returns. If taxpayers will file their returns early, they will find that this will be mutually beneficial to them and to the government.

Forms for filing returns of income for 1941 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time—on or before March 16 if the return is made on the calendar-year basis, as is the case with most individuals.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors and from deputy collectors of internal revenue in the larger cities and towns.

The revenue act of 1941 provides a simplified method of computing income tax in the case of individuals whose gross income is derived wholly from salary, wages, or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, annuities, or royalties, and does not exceed $3,000. A new Form 1040A has been provided for taxpayers who are entitled to and elect to use such method. A table on the reverse side of the form shows the amount of tax on increasing amounts of gross income after the proper allowance of $400 for each dependent.

Citizens Filing Income Returns

Because of the lowered income tax base this year, a considerable number of citizens will pay taxes for their first time. Federal income tax officials will be on hand to assist such crowds as this one in filing their returns. "Come early, avoid the rush," is the advice which officials again offer this year.

Notes for Taxpayers

To make it easier for taxpayers to meet the increased taxes required by the national defense program, the treasury department is offering for sale two series of notes, both dated August 1, 1941, and maturing August 1, 1943.

Salaried persons and wage earners whose income is derived from personal services form the largest number of federal income taxpayers. This year this army of taxpayers will be greatly increased. Those who paid an income tax for 1940 have received the forms for the 1941 income tax return through the mails. In order that none may escape filing the return, employers are required to report the names of all their employees to whom, if single, they made payments of $750 or more in 1941, and if married, $1,500 or more.

Neither the President of the United States, nor the vice president nor federal judges, nor members of congress, are exempt from filing returns.

If a person is paid in whole or in part for his services by anything other than money, the fair market value of the thing taken must be reported as income.

For Deceased Persons.

A return is required to be filed for a deceased individual if the gross income to the date of death is $750 or over, and the individual was single, or married and not living with husband or wife for any part of the taxable year, or if the gross income to the date of death is equal to, or in excess of the credit for personal exemption (not including credit as head of family or for dependents), and the individual was married and living with husband or wife for all or any part of the taxable year.

An individual, although a minor, who is single, or married and not living with husband or wife for any part of the taxable year, is required to render a return of income if he has a gross income of his own of $750 or over for the taxable year.

Domestic relations enter into the making of an income tax return. This shows itself in the matter of personal exemptions.

The head of a family, as defined by the income-tax regulations, is an individual who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected to him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage or by adoption. As such, he or she is entitled to a personal exemption of $1,500.

A credit of $400 is allowed for each dependent. A dependent is one under 18 years of age, or one who is physically or mentally defective and incapable of self-support. He need not live with nor be related to the taxpayer.

Income taxes for 1941 are paid on normal tax net incomes and on surtax net incomes. A study of the instructions that accompany the income tax forms will show how to compute the tax on such incomes.

The credit for dependents as well as the personal exemption is required to be prorated where a change of status occurs during the taxable year.

For income-tax purposes there can only be one head of a family.

In addition to being the chief financial support, the head of a family must be related by blood, marriage, or adoption to his dependents, and he must have a legal or moral obligation to exercise family control over them and provide for their care.

It is not always necessary that a taxpayer and his dependents live under one roof the entire year in order that he be allowed the exemption given the head of a family.

In computing a federal income tax, the taxpayer is confronted with the problem of ascertaining, (1) his gross income and, unless the tax is computed under the optional simplified method, (2) his net income, and (3) his surtax net income. The instructions which accompany the forms clearly and explicitly set out how this is done. If, after reading them carefully, the taxpayer does not understand them, he should consult the nearest collector, or deputy collector, of internal revenue.

Farmers' Income Tax.

Farmers, which include livestock raisers, fruit and truck growers, poultry raisers, and operators of plantations and ranches, are liable for federal income-tax returns provided their income is sufficient to require the filing of returns. Primarily, due to the reduction in the credit for personal exemption, many farmers will be liable for returns and to the tax for the first time for the year 1941.

Amounts received as loans from the Commodity Credit corporation may, at the option of the taxpayer, be considered as income and included in gross income for the taxable year in which received. The election made with respect to the calendar year 1939, or for the first year thereafter for which a return is required to be filed, is binding for all subsequent years unless the commissioner approves a change to a different method of accounting. Amounts received under the soil conservation and domestic allotment act, as amended, the price adjustment act of 1938, section 303 of the Agricultural Adjustment act, as amended, and the sugar act of 1937 constitute taxable income to the recipients for federal income-tax purposes.

Income which becomes the property of a person during the taxable year should be included in his gross income even though he does not have physical possession of it. This occurs where income is unconditionally credited to his account or set apart subject to his order at any time, and such income is said to have been constructively received.

Exempt Items.

Certain items are specifically exempt from the income tax and need not be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income. Among such items are the proceeds from life insurance policies paid by reason of the death of the insured. Amounts received (other than amounts paid by reason of the death of the insured and interest payments on such amounts and other than amounts received as annuities) under a life insurance or endowment contract, which are less than or exactly equal to the premiums or consideration paid therefor, are exempt from federal income tax. Any excess received over the consideration paid is taxable. Amounts received as an annuity under an annuity or endowment contract shall be included in gross income.

Pensions and compensation received by veterans from the United States for services in time of war are exempt, and pensions received from the United States by the family of a veteran for services rendered by the veteran in time of war are exempt.

The destruction by frost, storm, flood, or fire of a prospective crop is not a deductible loss in computing income. If livestock has been purchased for any purpose, and afterward dies from disease, exposure, or injury, or is killed by order of the authorities of a state or the United States, the actual purchase price of such livestock, less any depreciation allowable as a deduction in respect of such perished livestock, may be deducted as a loss if the loss is not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

Sentiment Against the British Still Exists in United States... Nation World Food Center... (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—For as many years as this war may last, and perhaps—if the Churchill dream of the role of Britain and the United States during the years to follow should come true—for many years longer, it is highly essential that anti-British sentiment in this country should be submerged.

This war already has developed a sequel to the "Britain is willing to fight until the last Frenchman dies" of the last war. For instance the story of the men of various nationalities in the airplane, when it became apparent that the plane could not surmount the mountain range, and gain safety, unless most of the passengers jumped. The Frenchman jumped first, then the Belgian, the Hollander, the Dane and the Norwegian, each with a patriotic utterance. Finally came the Englishman's turn. Shouting, "There will always be an England!" he pushed the Greek out!

The fact that this story is being told, and with some relish, from New England to the Pacific coast, means something. Actually if the Britisher, in that story, had pushed out an Australian it would have come closer to meeting the criticism so many Americans have been voicing in conversations.

Few British Soldiers?

This is based, very largely, on the headlines in newspapers about the fighting in Africa, in Greece, in Crete, and more recently in Malaya. It seems to the average newspaper reader, and radio listener, that very few soldiers from the island of Britain are fighting the empire's enemies. We get so many reports about this or that Canadian or American flier being shot down, and about Australian or South African or Indian troops making attacks or defenses, that even the few pro-British citizens of the United States wonder about it.

The answer is very simple. Just a few days ago Sir Gerald Campbell, chief of the British Press service in the United States, gave out the total casualties of the fighting in the first Libyan campaign, in Ethiopia, Greece and Crete. Casualties among men who had come from the island of Britain, which includes only England, Scotland and Wales, were 100,000. Australia had 5,000, New Zealand had 5,000 more. India had 7,000 and South Africa 4,500.

Twenty times as many men from Britain perished, were wounded or captured, as men from either Australia or New Zealand. Almost five times as many casualties among British troops as among the Australian, New Zealand, Indian and South African troops put together!

Now this is no reflection on the dominions or colonies. Far from it. Actually the Indian and Australians and others have been going, pretty much, where the high command thought it best for them to go. And it so happened that the generals who ordered the troops into dangerous positions were Britishers.

The fault which encouraged this total misunderstanding not only in America, but in Australia, where there have been many protests about the sacrifice of so many Australian troops, is simply due to a British publicity policy of giving full credit—advertising if you like—to the overseas recruited forces.

Uncle Sam's Will Supply Food

Outside the fighting forces, the most vital worker in America today is the one dealing with metals. But a very close second, in the national defense picture, is the man or woman producing certain varieties of food, particularly proteins.

Milk, eggs, beef rank right next to munitions, and not very far behind at that. More stress is being laid upon munitions, because up to now—leaving out World War No. 1—the production of enough food has never been a problem in this country.

The British wanted to sell their manufactured products all over the world, particularly in South America, before the war. So they built up a big business of selling to Argentina, taking beef and grain from that country. They bought bacon, eggs, etc., from Denmark, hams from Poland, and to a lesser extent other food products from overseas.

Continental European sources were lost to them early in the war, while the shipping shortage made it impractical to spare the ships to bring food from the Argentine. Now in this war there is a great deal more discrimination as to the categories of food to be shipped to Britain than there was in the last war. We are more conscious of vitamins. The British are terribly short of meat, eggs and milk. We are able to send powdered milk, dried eggs and meat extract, but while this concentrated form helps a great deal in the matter of shipping space the same amount of production is necessary.

Guide Electrocuted

As He Warns of Wire

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.—Thayer J. Allen, keeper of Point Arguello lighthouse at the "grave yards of the Pacific," was showing a visitor around.

"Twenty-six hundred volts go through this wire," he said as he pointed to an electric transformer. "Accidentally, he touched it. He was killed instantly."

1941 Showed Rise In Violent Crime

FBI Reports Increase in Murders Over 1940.

WASHINGTON.—Increases in major crime, including murder and rape, are shown in a report for the nine months of 1941 compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

As compared with the corresponding nine months of 1940, murders increased by 7.9 per cent, rape by 7.2 per cent, automobile thefts by 6.6 per cent and felonious assaults by 5.5.

The FBI reported decreases in other categories. Robberies declined by 7.7 per cent, burglaries by 6.1 per cent and larcenies by 1 per cent.

While the highest crime rates were reported from cities with populations in excess of 100,000, the "murder and aggravated assault" rates were highest in cities with populations of 50,000 to 100,000.

"Bulletin figures showed that 59 per cent of the crimes reported to the FBI by police agencies during the nine-month period were larcenies," the report said. "Burglaries accounted for another 21 per cent, more than half of these involving stores, warehouses, office buildings and other nonresidential structures."

"Of the reported crimes, 11.8 per cent were robberies, 3.1 per cent were larcenies and the remaining 4.5 per cent were criminal homicides, rapes and aggravated assaults."

"The FBI studied 479,701 fingerprint arrest records during the nine months, which revealed a 15 per cent increase in the arrest of women in comparison to a corresponding period last year."

Census Bureau Reveals

Drugs as Store Sideline

WASHINGTON.—The census bureau makes it official—medicine is a distinct sideline in the modern fountain drug store, which sells everything from cigars to alarm clocks.

According to reports to the census bureau, items such as banana splits and peanut butter sandwiches take in twice as much money as prescriptions.

The number of drug stores with fountains increased from 34,344 in 1929 to 39,452 in 1939, and their sales rose from $1,149,280,000 to $1,205,241,000. Forty-two per cent of this sales volume was in meals, liquor and tobacco, and only 23 per cent in prescriptions. Drug stores without fountains fell off from 23,414 in 1929 to 18,451 in 1939, and their sales dropped from $541,139,000 annually to $357,261,000 annually. Medicine accounted for 34 per cent of all their sales; tobacco and liquor for 22 per cent.

Coast Guard School to

Speed Up Graduations

WASHINGTON.—The navy announced that the coast guard academy class of 1943 will be graduated a full year early and the class of 1942 will come out on December 19 this year, about six months ahead of schedule in order to provide an immediate increase in officer strength.

The 1942 class of 30 cadets will be given diplomas as bachelors of science. Members will be commissioned ensigns in the coast guard, now operating as part of the navy. They will be assigned to ships immediately.

For the duration of the emergency, the coast guard academy, at New London, Conn., will have a three-year course.

Homing Pigeons to Aid

Bombers Crash Victims

TAMPA.—The army's most silent messengers and in emergency considered one of the surest—homing pigeons—may soon be seeing active service with bombing crews at MacDill Field.

Seventy pigeons were brought to MacDill Field recently from the army's breeding and training center at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Army officials believe the swift-flying birds will be useful to plane crews that have made forced or "crash" landings.

Lieut. Thomas J. Fulton, charged with training the birds, commented on their reliability. "Pigeons don't go AWOL," he said. "In the last war, we found that 96 per cent of those we sent out always returned."

Well, That's What He

Asked for, Wasn't It?

CAMP FUNSTON, KAN.—Frank Case of headquarters troop, 14th Cavalry, headquaters of a train window and lost his false teeth.

He telegraphed his wife to "send all available plates." Back came a box with six dinner plates.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma:

Well from what I read in the papers and hear on the radio I guess the boys in the army are a lot cooler than the folks back home in civvies. I hope you and pop half not had a breakdown listening to all them air raid warning tests and trying to follow all the different orders. The army has one thing on the civvies, it don't have to work in so much confusion.

I got your letter about dad being a air warden. I knew he wood want to do his bit but I half to laugh when I think of him ordering anybody to keep away from windows as he is always in a window looking out most of the time.

I wish you could realize what a change has come over the boys here. They now want to fight anywhere and most anybody will do. But they put Japs at the top of their list. The more news we get about the treacherous stuff at Pearl Harbor and the brave work of our boys the soarer we get. Sergeant Mooney when he read about the Japs using a two-man submarine said it was probably no sub at all but just one of them barrels they juggle in the circus. And he says even two Japs in a sub would only be about half a man anyhow.

They surprised us all right but I got a surprise coming and how. I just heard a definition of a isolationist. A isolationist is a fellow who thinks a net under a trapeze is foolish on account of he is only a spectator anyhow.

Well I see where the draft age is to be extended to 44 which disposes of any idea I may get out soon which I don't want to do no more anyhow. A few weeks ago I was kicking like all the rest of the boys and asking what was the sense of all this time in a army with nobody to fight but now that we got more people fighting us at one time than ever before it all is different.

You may laugh mom but this is a fact that we ain't been worrying half about what happens to us in the war lately as we been worried about the folks back home with all them mayors broadcasting orders at once. I could picture you rushing around shopping for sandbags and pop having a fit because he couldn't find out how to shut off the gas in case of a raid. Still you better follow instructions as best you can as nobody can tell what may happen only I wish the mayors could be as calm as the people. I tuned in one night when Mr. LaGuardia was talking. It was such a cool calm talk I almost felt the war was over but you could of knocked me over with a feather when he wound up his talk by saying: "Well, I don't expect any attack TONIGHT. The weather is unfavorable." What a crack that was. I hope it did not scare you any.

There is a lot of rumors around camp and I think something is up, but I don't know where we may get sent. Nothing would surprise me and I don't care no more where I go as long as it gives me a chance to do my bit for the greatest country on earth. And I hope when we see action it won't take no umpires to find out who won.

Well take care of yourself, do not let those air raid hints scare you too much and say a prayer for me now and then as this is the kind of war when they will all be needed.

Your son,
Oscar

THE INNER CALL

"Hitler says an inner call caused him to take supreme command."—News item.) He orders this and orders that—He leaps into the newest brawl; He rages, acts or stands quite pat... According to "the inner call."

He hastens to his mountain place Or leaves it with no word at all; He gallops, or he slows his pace... Responding to "the inner call."

He makes a plan, then cuts it out; He quits the front to hire a hall; He turns from confidence to doubt... It's all a case of "inner call."

Oh, on some future day he'll find He's bashed his head against the wall; The reason will then be defined... 'Twas nothing but that "inner call!"

"Both Germany and America had depressions. But while a German experienced an immense regeneration of labor, trade and art, Roosevelt did not succeed in altering anything."—Adolf Hitler.

As Elmer Twitcheil asks, "What's that guy smoking anyhow?"

Elmer Twitcheil says he understands that the war hit that country the Wild Man of Borneo hoisted the white flag, came in on the run and asked protection from civilization.

Historical Russian Crimean Sector

Before the German attack, the Russians held well over a thousand miles of Black sea frontage, extending along the entire northern and eastern reaches. Early German advances eastward had cut this figure almost by half, when Russian counter attack not only recovered considerable Crimean mileage but also gave the Russians a centralized position overlooking still German-held territory in the southern Ukraine.

The Black sea long has been an "international lake" where history was made. More than 700 miles long and with an area larger than that of California, it has offered a broad field of operations since its jagged coasts provided haven from which powerful pirate fleets attacked ancient merchant shipping.

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

INSTALLMENT NINE

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate of her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, has come to Honolulu to attempt getting the property. In an effort to find out something about the Wayne family, now in control of Alakoa, the island, she accepts a date to go sailing with Richard (Tonga Dick) Wayne. Against her wishes he takes her to Alakoa. While there, James Wayne, Dick's uncle and manager of the property, is found dead from overwork. Next day on the way back to Honolulu Dick tells Karen he loves her, but they quarrel over her claim to the estate. Dick later tries to work out a compromise settlement with John Colt and when he fails he tells Karen and Colt that their adventure is to end soon. He goes back to Alakoa and is in the midst of a conference with his two half-brothers, Willard and Ernest Wayne.

Now continue with the story.

"You see," Dick said, "as this contest for Alakoa sifts down, all the original aspects of the case are going to have to be investigated with the utmost thoroughness—and made public. You understand that, I suppose?"

Willard Wayne said with an unnecessary intensity, "Just what do you mean by that?"

"I mean that it is very likely—even inevitable—that a lot of things are going to be brought to light that nobody's thought about for a long time. Isn't that so?"

"Don't know what you're driving at," Ernest mumbled.

"How well, for instance," Dick Wayne asked them, "do you think that you knew James Wayne?"

"We've worked with him all our lives," Willard said impatiently.

"And yet, did it ever occur to you he might know some things you never suspected at all?"

"Nonsense!"

"For example," Dick went on, his voice lazy, "take the exact circumstances under which old Garrett Waterson left here—just at the time the Waynes bought this island."

"That has nothing to do with it," Ernest declared. "The entire transaction was closed before Garrett Waterson—disappeared."

"This disappearance," Dick prodded them, "the tradition has been that he set sail southwest, in his own schooner, and was never seen again—wasn't that it?"

"Well? Can we be expected to account for—"

"Didn't you happen to know," Dick Wayne asked them, "that when Garrett Waterson sailed, our father was with him?"

They were not looking at him now; but their eyes were fixed upon each other, and an unspoken question passed between them.

Tonga Dick leaned forward, his face hardening. "The old rumor is that Garrett Waterson must have been lost at sea," he bore down on them. "And yet—and yet, our father came back—"

Dick saw Willard Wayne's heavy neck redden; the color rose and rose until Willard's eyes, no longer slow and mild, stared bleakly out of a purple congestion. Ernest, however, turned a sickly green, and behind his glasses his eyes could not be seen.

Dick's own eyes turned ugly. "So you did know that?" he said. "You've known it for a long time, haven't you?"

"Stop," said Willard Wayne thickly. "You don't know what you're saying!"

"I take it," Dick said, "that I was not supposed to know about that little circumstance."

Willard's voice rose. "I object to your tone," he blustered. "I object to the whole line you've taken. It isn't up to us to go raking through the dead ashes of the past!"

"You've told me what I wanted to know," Dick said. "You put me in mind of a couple of tide pools full of octopi—easy to see to the bottom of, but not pretty to look at. I can understand now why James Wayne never trusted either one of you!"

"What—what—" The edge of Ernest Wayne's voice sounded frayed out, raveled. "What do you mean?" he finally got out.

"How long," Tonga Dick asked them, "have you two supposed yourselves to be the sons of a murderer?"

Ernest Wayne stood up violently, both hands gripping the edge of the desk. "That's a lie!" he shouted. Willard Wayne sat motionless.

"Well?" he said at last.

"I don't wonder that John Colt scares you out of your wits," Dick said. "I should think he would!"

There was a silence then, raw and uncomfortable. Willard Wayne spoke to Ernest, his voice heavy and dead. "You see, I was right. We have to go back to Honolulu—at once—tomorrow. Some way, somehow, we've got to settle out of court with John Colt, at any cost."

"Yes," Ernest said.

Dick could see the man visibly twisted between a cupidity that could not face loss and a cowardice which was afraid of something else. It was not a pretty sight.

"You won't have to go to Honolulu," Dick said sardonically; "you can save yourselves the trip. John Colt will be here within twenty-four hours."

"Colt? Here? What could make him come here?"

"I make him come here," Tonga Dick said.

A faint flicker of self assertion reappeared in Ernest Wayne. "You can't order us—"

The eyes of the two brothers snapped sharply to Dick's face. Probably they did not believe him; but they were grasping at straws.

"You hold something over John Colt?" Willard asked.

"Do you mean," Dick asked incredulously, "am I in a position to blackmail Colt?"

"Somewhere in that man's life," Willard Wayne said, "there must be something that he doesn't dare have turned up. It's been our only hope, all along, that we could find out what it is. And if you've got hold of it?"

Dick Wayne had meant to tell them, tonight, what he knew. He had meant to tell them that their father had not killed Garrett Waterson—had even meant to give them an irrefutable proof. But now his temper broke, and he could not bring himself to tell them anything at all.

He stood up. "Get out of here," he ordered them. "Get out of here, and stay out! I can't stand looking at you any more!"

A faint flicker of self assertion reappeared in Ernest Wayne. "You can't order us—"

Willard Wayne stood up and signaled to Ernest with his eyes. Together, after a moment's hesitation, they left the room.

CHAPTER IX

Dick Wayne went to bed, but it seemed to him that he was not allowed to stay there long. The first light was hardly showing in the sky when his brothers were at him again, literally clamoring at his very bedside.

Evidently they were angry, in addition. "What is the meaning of this?" Ernest Wayne demanded, spinning a yellow sheet of paper onto the bed.

"What's the meaning of what?" "Nobody but you," Ernest accused him, "could have had that radio message sent."

Dick picked up the paper, and by the poor but increasing light read what was typed upon it. Instantly he was more wide awake than as if he had never slept at all.

"When did this come in?"

"Just a few minutes ago," Willard told him. "You ought to know. There isn't anybody else that could."

Tonga Dick looked at the message again. It read:

MAKE NO SETTLEMENT UNTIL I ARRIVE GARRETT WATSON

Dick's first reaction was, for special reasons of his own, one of immense relief. But his next thought, which followed immediately brought him a new uncertainty. The new turn of events relieved him of certain necessities; but it also took the game out of his own hands in a way that he did not like.

Ernest Wayne's nervousness did not permit him to wait Dick out. "Well—what have you got to say?"

"This message is genuine," Dick told them.

"This is incredible—this is fantastic," Ernest said unsteadily.

"Some kind of a hoax," Willard added.

"There's no hoax about it," Tonga Dick assured them.

"How do you know this?" Willard demanded.

"I work for him," Tonga Dick said.

"You what?" Ernest Wayne bleated.

"He's lying," Willard expressed himself.

"And just why," Dick asked with elaborate patience, "should I be lying?"

"Willard," Ernest said, "do you suppose this thing could possibly be true? Because if Garrett Waterson is alive, and we can produce him—do you see what that means? John Colt's case is absolutely exploded."

"Is it?" Dick said.

They were stopped once more. Ernest and Willard were both deathly pale, overwhelmed by more unforeseen uncertainties than they were able to handle.

"You mean," Willard said at last, "that Garrett Waterson really is incompetent?"

"I mean," Dick said, "that the whole situation is going to be just exactly what old Garrett Waterson chooses to make it."

"What on earth," Ernest asked Willard in a bewildered way, "are we supposed to do now?"

Tonga Dick kicked out of bed with a movement of exasperation, and hunted around for a bath towel.

"I tell you what you're going to do," he roared at them. "You're going to go and tell Tsura I want three eggs for breakfast! I have no doubt it will take both of you to handle that problem—you don't seem to be able to do anything alone. Get out!"

Ernest and Willard Wayne morosely watched Tonga Dick as he ate his breakfast. He was able to enjoy that, in a way. Uncertain as he was about what this new turn of the wheel might mean, the confusion of his brothers was so much greater as to provide a form of entertainment.

Even when they had abandoned the presumption that Dick was lying, they could not get over their suspicion that the man who had signed himself Garrett Waterson was an impostor.

"I ran into Garrett Waterson while I was knocking around the South Seas," Dick explained. "Later, Uncle Jim found it convenient to have me carry certain messages to Garrett Waterson. That's all there was to that."

"Messages? What messages?"

There was no reason for holding back anything now. He had been employed by old Garrett Waterson on condition of complete secrecy as to Waterson's whereabouts, identity—even his very existence. He had decided to break that pledge, rather than permit John Colt to seize Alakoa in the name of Karen Waterson or anyone else; but now that Garrett Waterson had come into the open of his own accord, that consideration was abolished.

"For a long time I didn't know what messages," Dick told them. "I believe I know now."

They failed to catch him up on that, and the oversight emphasized their bewilderment.

"But why on earth," Ernest demanded, "should he have wished to hide himself? That's the mystery here."

"There's no mystery about it," Dick declared. "The only reasons his actions look mysterious to you is that they were perfectly simple. Garrett Waterson was always a man of violent temperament. Everything he did was in terms of violent extremes; the projects he attempted, the fights he got into—even his eating and drinking—everything was always on a spectacular scale with him. When he was overtaken by ultimate ruin, his reaction to that was violent too. He left Alakoa, and Hawaii, in a tremendously bitter state of mind. He wanted to get away from the past, and from the part of the Pacific that he knew, and never again see anyone who had known him."

"It's fantastic," Ernest declared. "It's completely unreasonable. I never heard of anything like it."

"Dropping from view is one thing," Willard said heavily, "and going to extraordinary lengths to hide yourself, and conceal who you are, is something else."

"Waterson went to extraordinary lengths in everything he ever did," Dick retorted. "The Pacific is a big place and there are more than twenty-five thousand islands in it; but only a few of them have any white inhabitants, and I suppose Garrett Waterson knew half the people in the Pacific. He couldn't imagine leaving the Pacific any more than he could imagine living inland, so of course it was pretty hard for him to evade the people that he knew. When a man is trying to drop out of sight, and fails at it for a while, it's apt to become an obsession with him. He gets to thinking that everybody he sees is talking about him, secretly. So he draws apart more and more, until at last—"

"It's completely unreasonable," Ernest Wayne said again.

"Human nature always seems unreasonable to people who don't know anything about it. Unreasonable is what it is; you just have to get used to it."

"It's completely unreasonable," Ernest Wayne said again.

Few More Years Would Have Toughened Uncle

The oldest inhabitant had celebrated his hundredth birthday and the reporter of a local paper called on him for an interview. "To what do you attribute your longevity?" the reporter inquired.

The centenarian paused a moment and then, holding up his hand and ticking off the items on his fingers, began: "I never drank alcoholic liquors, or overate, and I always rise at six in the morning."

"But," protested the reporter, "I had an uncle who acted in that way, yet he only lived to be eighty. How do you account for that?"

"He didn't keep it up long enough," was the calm reply.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM EDWARD W. WOLAK

P.F.C. Edward W. Wolak,
Cochran Field, Georgia
January 14, 1942.

Dear Pop:
I was never so glad to get both my feet on the ground. I rolled back the canopy, and half fell and half climbed out of the cockpit. My equilibrium didn't function at first, but with the help of the crew, I managed to remove my chute. Here is how it happened.

I walked into the barracks about 6:00 p.m. Payne told me that Bill wanted to see me out on the line. He was on night flying duty. I changed clothes and went out to see him. Having nothing to do, I stayed there, since they were short handed anyway. Nothing exciting happened until 9:00 P.M., when a Lieut. walked up to us and wanted to know where plane No. 225 was. Bill told him, and he started away. I turned to watch him go, and suddenly decided "why not," so I asked him if he was going up alone. He said yes, and if I could get a chute, he'd take me up with him. I swish I got a chute and we were ready to go. He taxied out and after waiting for a few cadets to land, received the all clear signal and took off.

He headed the ship toward Atlanta, and forty five minutes later we circled and started back. We were flying at 8,200 ft. and believe me, the altimeter hand moved as fast as the second hand on a watch. At one time, we climbed at the rate of 1900 ft. a minute. It was pitch black outside, and there was no distinction between the sky and the land. I was beginning to get a little cold, and uncomfortable, when the engine died down to a mere whisper. The officer turned around and said something, but he had to repeat it twice before my deafened ears could catch his words. I assured him I had my safety belt fastened OK. (little did I know, heh, heh, heh). He opened the throttle again. The ship's nose came up slightly and the left wing dropped, in fact, it kept dropping. Slowly the ship turned over on its back. My feet came off the floor plates. I hung in my belt partially, but I think most of me was standing on my head on the canopy. When we finished the slow roll, I really tightened it. I also rolled the seat down about 4 inches. He repeated that slow roll about four more times then flew straight. Suddenly, the ship lurched earth and sky changed places rapidly and there I was, trying to figure out whether it was stars I was looking up at or lights on the ground. I had the same trouble every time he did the snap roll.

We climbed back to 8,000 ft. and he brought up the nose. I watched the Airspeed and it began to drop towards zero. He kicked the left rudder, and dropped a wing, and if you think the cruiser you fly winds up fast, I wish you could have had my stomach for awhile. Just before it went into the spin, the ship creaked and groaned and protested, in fact, it sounded as if someone was trying to tear the fuselage in two, quite scary to a person the first time. As he pulled out of the spin, the nose came up, up, up, up and over. Then we dove down again, and with a whirl of power she came up again - this time it was a sharper one. Something popped in my neck, and my head sagged down between my shoulders, my mouth opened, and try as I might, I couldn't close it. Then I was free again. The rascal had looped four times in a row right after recovering from the spin.

By this time we were over the field, and at 6,200 he did a few chandelies, and then rolled the ship over on its back. This time he stayed there. I could feel my head swelling like a balloon and I looked up (or was it down) with my nose pressed against the canopy, looking at the lights of a little town. I had the funniest streak of fright run through me while watching the altimeter. It was dropping rapidly, and we stayed upside down for about a minute (it seemed like an hour). A sudden thought struck me, I said to myself, "I hope he don't get some silly idea about committing suicide." Then I realized that my hand was resting on the safety belt release. Believe me, I pulled it away from there in a hurry. The fuel pressure warning signal flickered on and then kept on burning steadily. Finally, he decided that we ought to be right side up again, so there we were.

He then began to do steep eighties over the field, steep and tight. I couldn't even lift my feet off the floor. I tried to reach the fluorescent light to adjust it, and missed by six inches. I forgot to allow for the centrifugal force at work on my arm. Then when he'd get tired of that, he'd go off on the side and do some snap rolls and a slow roll or two. One time, he dove down for about 3,000 ft. Then we circled the field on the level, but not my stomach, it was still trying to catch up with the rolls and that last dive. We dropped lower, and lower and finally headed straight. The wheels touched, there was a rumble of the oleo's as we went over the rough turf, and finally came into the line. As I said before, I stumbled and did everything else getting out. Another half hour in the air, and I would have been cleaning an airplane in the morning.

The chutes have an airfilled cushion on them for sitting, but you'd be surprised at how hard something filled with air can get. I'd been in the air from 9:11 p.m. until 12:15 a.m. a total of three hours. I have never had a better ride and you know yourself that I've had some good ones with Shorty and some better ones with you.

We flew upside down, did slow rolls, snap rolls, spins, loops, chandelies, dives, stalls, eighties, and a few I didn't have time to recognize, for two hours straight. No! I didn't get sick but my stomach was unsettled for all of the next day.

I'd like to do that again sometime during the day when I could get my bearings quicker. That's the first time in my life that I didn't feel a little disappointed when we started to land. I went to sleep after that with my shoes and glasses on, and woke up this morning with my shoes under my bunk, and my glasses on the shelf, and I know that I didn't put them there.

A corporal tried to pull his rank on me yesterday to wash his ship. I'd better explain; we have one spot with a water connection, and if you want to wash your airplane, you taxi it over there. Well, he was keeping the spot open until his ship came in and I wanted it for ours. I'd been there first, but he has two stripes (so has a little kitty) and pulled them on me, but my crew chief has four stripes, so I told him our ship needed washing, and when it came in I put it there. The two stripes came over and said, "what's the big idea," so I said "you go out there, and argue with Staff Sergeant Duke, he's the crew chief, I only work here." He shut up like a clam.

I'm hungry, oh well, only one more hour to go until dinner. Have you done much flying lately? What are your total flying hours, (not counting the first ten dual). I'm only kidding pop. I think your an OK pilot. I wish I could get you a chance to fly one of these BT-13A's. Did I tell you that I made a sketch of one? It don't look half bad, it looks all bad.

I'm the only one in the squadron who passed the Aircraft Mechanic Exam. on Propellers. I got a final grade of 81.2. That test was based on the prop. specialist course which I didn't take. I really shouldn't have passed it. I got a final grade of 87.6 on my other one. The fourth highest in the squadron. I can't understand it, I should have done better. I think the markers made a mistake, no kidding pop.

Remember back at Scott Field when I was disgusted with the army guard duty and everything? You'd write and tell me what some old army man told you. Well, some of the things were right, but half of them were wrong. It's no reflection on those men, but it's just that the army is different now than in 1918. They are going to give us lectures on World Policies starting today, one hour each day until March 4. I think it's a good idea. They'll talk about the Munich pact, the Battle of Britain, and all kinds of things leading up to this fight.

Bill wrote his girl friend a letter and said he has decided to stop writing to her. That was about two weeks ago. This week he received a big box of cookies and some special candy just for himself. Aren't women funny?

I wrote to aunt Jo, but I haven't received an answer from her yet. I also have not heard from Eddie, or Annie. Tell mom that I'd like some delicious date bars will ya huh?

I don't feel like writing any long letters today so Bye now, Eddie. P.S. Love to Mom and Addie, you too pop. How is smookey dog getting along. Is there any ice skating going on in town. I wish I could go out and do some.

PALOS PARK

By DOROTHY ROBSON

The Red Cross Work Class met Monday at the Village hall. Don't forget the War Relief Drive and your donation today. Remember Pearl Harbor!

Rev. and Mrs. Paul T. Sanders left Thursday night by train for a three week vacation in Corpus Christi, Texas.

The Girl Scouts met Monday afternoon at the Village hall.

Agnes and Janet Weir spent Saturday night in Lemont shopping and visiting friends.

Palos Township will have its first Civilian Defense meeting this Friday night, January 30 at 8 p.m., at the Village hall. Everyone should attend this meeting so we will know what to do in case of an air-raid blackout. A speaker from O. C. D. headquarters will outline and explain the civilian's job in defense. The advisory committee for the Village of Palos Park has been appointed as follows: H. L. Brueggemann, Lester Mahaffay, Joel L. Collins, Roy Keys, Gordon Gibbons, Robert Kotbra, Fred Mulhausen, Martin Olsen, O. D. Bebb and Carl Peterson. Township officers and representatives from each suburban subdivision will be added to this group at this meeting. Be sure and plan to attend and take part in the civilian defense organization.

Weir and McCord schools are now studying about the stars under the direction of Evelyn Keaton of the Community Center Foundation. They are planning a trip to the Foundation some evening very soon to see how many of the stars they can identify.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Powell and family attended the 20th wedding anniversary Sunday night of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Marti of Mokena. Others attending this gala affair were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beagley and family, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Beagley, William, Ray and Wally Beagley all of Orland Park. An enjoyable evening was spent by all and our congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Marti are added to those expressed Sunday night.

Mrs. George Lempera visited at the Weir family home one day last week.

The Boy Scouts met Tuesday night at the Village hall.

We are sorry to hear that Will Kelsey, a former farmer resident here, was in an automobile accident in front of his home in Plainfield. He was taken to a local hospital for examination which showed that no bones were broken and he suffered no worse injury than losing a few teeth. His car was wrecked and would cost more to repair it than the price of a new car. I know that his friends here will be glad to learn that he suffered no serious injury.

Gordon Powell and Owen Harlan attended a first aid meeting in Chicago Monday night.

The Oak Hill Cemetery Association announces their next meeting place to be at the home of Mrs. Ada Schmidt February.

Frank Powell has been on the sick list the past week with a sinus attack.

A good crowd turned out to the Barn dance Friday night sponsored by the P. T. A. of District 118 which was held at the Village hall. Mr. Lackey of the 102nd Field House was the caller and music was furnished by the Sons of the Saddle. Proceeds will go to buy a projector for the school.

Pete Rink's Riding Academy has been having its share of hay-rack rides. Fog, rain or cold weather doesn't seem to hinder the spirits of these young people.

Dorothy Robson is to appear in a WLS stage show in South Stickney three nights next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carson of Chicago spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Carson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Lempera.

THE CASE OF THE NEWS-STARVED HUSBAND

reported by Louise Clemens
Home Lighting Advisor

In response to phone call, went to 1121 St.

1. Mrs. B. told me about one of those little family scenes previous evening. Husband complained he had no place to read evening news. He said, "Of all times to etc. etc. etc."

2. Surveyed room with light meter, showed Mrs. B. some modern lighting tricks that cost little and work wonders...

3. Called back week later...my recommendations had been followed. Mrs. B. installed modern 6-way I. E. S. lamp, rearranged furniture so children now share desk lamp (will shortly replace with I. E. S. study lamp), and everybody's happy...I'm proud of our Home Lighting Service!

About fifty persons in the Orland

Community heard the latest provisions for filing Income Tax returns at a meeting in the Orland Park High School last Friday afternoon which was sponsored by the Farm Bureau.

ORLAND SCHOOL NEWS
January 23 Orland played three games at Beecher, Ill. The Grade School had Beecher in height and speed. The starting lineup for Orland was Heim and Yates as forwards, Willie Heim, Center and Yunker and Lillwitz as Guards. The final score was 32-15.

The Freshman Sophomore won by a score of 7-4. The lineup was A for attempt, M for Mode, F for Fouls.

Parker G. 3A 1M, 2F, Maddox, G. 7A, 3M, 2F, Saxton, C. 0A, OM, 2F, Doronski, F. 0A, OM, OF, Dorn F., 3A, 1M, 4F. The game was very close with each team fighting for possession of the ball.

The Junior Senior team lost by a score of 47-33, Orland just couldn't score the way they generally do.

Benson was the high scorer with 18 points. The lineup of Orland was Benson, F., 9A, 9M, 2F, Hewson, F., 7A, 6M, OF, Maddox, C., 3A, 1M OF, Mutch, G., 5A, 2M, OF, Uthe, G., 2A, 2M, 2F.

Orland played Plainfield at home January 24 and lost both games. The final score in Freshman Sophomore game was 16-12. The lineup was Doronski and Dorn, Forwards, Saxton, Center, Parker, Maddox, guards, Benson, Forward. The Junior Senior lost by a score of 32-25.

The game was fast but most of the boys were tired from the game Friday night with Beecher. The Orland lineup was: Benson and Homerding Forwards, Maddox, Center, Jorgenson, Mutch, and Uthe, guards. The boys play Oswego next Tuesday night at Oswego, remember Orland beat Oswego by 22 points last time. Bob Hewson is out of the lineup because of a hurt knee which was done at Beecher.

Friday evening the Schmaedeke Implement Co. used the gym for its annual Implement movie and entertainment. Nearly five hundred attended. This and the Farm Bureau meeting Friday afternoon on Income Tax returns are just two of the uses to which our community is putting to the gym.

Monday night the Orland community health committee held a meeting to consider plans for giving Tuberculosis tests.

In Assembly last Wednesday three pupils from Miss Cedar's room gave a reading on the "Happy Prince". Cornelia Vander Meyden read the part of the narrator, George Gee Jr., the part of the Happy Prince, and Dorothy Hallinan the part of the Sparrow.

No Smoking signs are being made for the gym. The public is asked to cooperate when in the building by refraining from smoking.

In response to the request from the Primary Room, the new gym floor has been made available to Mrs. Creer's children each Friday morning before school. With such an early start Orland should have a good basketball team when these girls and boys grow up.

Plans are under way to improve Orland's cheering at basketball games. Evelyn Rafacz and Laverne Sucharski are writing letters to several universities to get suggestions and copies of their cheers to be used as models for Orland. Next week, tryouts for cheerleaders will be held during the Wednesday assembly when a vote will be taken to choose official cheerleaders for the first and second teams. The following teams will perform: First team: Evelyn Rafacz, Laverne Sucharski, and Joyce Homerding. Second: Patricia Dowling, Bettie Ringberg, and Joyce Homerding. Third: Eleanor Cooper, Ruth Gee and June Schuster. Fourth: Marilyn Sayre, Joyce Beagley and Lois Maddox.

The Mokena Boosters who wonder what was wrong with Richard (Scony) Benson during the Crete game, will be pleased to hear that something has happened to Scony lately. He has returned to his old Mokena form, making 18 points against Beecher and to lead Orland's scoring. The Orland Boosters hope Scony will keep up this form when Bob Hewson gets back into stride. Bob has been out with a chipped cartilage. If this happens, it looks like bad medicine for Orland's opposition.

This is what every woman knows and no man can fully understand. This seething saga of a most unusually romantic drama, "Unfinished Business", upholding the superb and outstanding performances of Irene Dunne, Robert Montgomery and Preston Foster, which will be featured at the Roxy Theatre at Lockport Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Larry Sunbrock's Hollywood Thrill Circus which closed its eight day engagement at the International Amphitheater Sunday, will continue with additional performances beginning Wednesday, Jan. 28th, with matinee and evening shows thru Sunday, Feb. 1st, it was announced today. These added days were by popular demand. The hold over was decided, due to sellout performances in which thousands of people were turned away nightly. According to officials, more than 152,000 spectators witnessed the eight day matinee and evening performances, and some 60,000 were turned away.

In addition to the 60 events on the combined shows bill, other features are to be added, including Senor Miguel Valencia, famous Mexican bullfighter, who will demonstrate his ability with ill tempered bulls; Emanuel Zaccchini, internationally known as the "Human Cannonball" and many others who have gained fame in the spectacular thrill show.

One of the outstanding events of the huge combined presentations includes cowboy and cowgirl championships from the west, southwest, Canada and Mexico. Circus performers in the thrill extravaganza include such headlines of the big tops as Torrence and Victoria, many times acclaimed the "King and Queen of the Big Top." Luscious to Look At and Eat, Too . . . Orange Sponge Cake
(See Recipes Below)

Snacks, II

"What shall I serve to guests who drop in for an evening of bridge or for a chat?"

This is a question I've heard many hostesses ask, especially often during colder weather when visiting time really comes into favor again. The answer is simple, for a delectable cake with steaming coffee or hot drink turns the trick.

Your guests will have finished their supper only a short time before, and since snacks do not come late in the evening, it is best to serve something not too heavy. Light cakes, preferably those with a touch of piquancy and tartness, fill the bill perfectly. These cakes may be baked in one of your not-so-busy moments to have on hand for just such an occasion.

Hot drinks are favorites in the chilling weather. If you like coffee, be sure to have quantities of the steaming beverage on hand. If you're on the lookout for new ideas, there are the hot fruit juice combinations which hit the spot. Either type of drink goes well with these dessert-like cakes.

Here's the first cake on our list. It's like spun gold in color with just the right tartness. You'll find that the navel oranges which peel and separate easily into sections will be perfect for decorating the cake as pictured above:

*Orange Sponge Cake.

5 egg yolks
1 1/4 cups sugar
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 cup water
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
5 egg whites

Beat egg yolks, sugar and orange juice until light. Add water and beat 2 minutes. Add flour sifted with baking powder and salt. Beat 1 minute or until thoroughly blended into egg mixture, fold in grated orange peel and egg whites beaten stiff but not dry. Bake in 9-inch ungreased tube pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven 70 minutes. Invert pan until cake is cold. Remove. Cut in three cross-wise layers.

Gold Topping.

1/4 cup cold water
1 tablespoon gelatin
4 egg yolks
3/4 cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
4 egg whites
1/4 cup sugar
Orange sections

Soften gelatin in water. Cook egg yolks, sugar and orange juice in top of double boiler until thick. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add grated peel and cool mixture. Beat egg whites stiff, adding 1/4 cup sugar and fold into cooked orange mixture. Spread between layers and on

Lynn Says:

Hot mulled fruit juices lend tang to winter evening snacks. You can have hot mulled cider by heating the cider and adding 1 teaspoon whole cloves and 1 stick of cinnamon (tied in a bag) while the cider is heating.

Here's another mulled fruit juice served piping hot: Tie in a bag, 12 whole cloves, 1 3-inch stick of cinnamon, and 1 whole nutmeg. Empty a large can of apple juice and a 12-ounce can of cherry juice in the saucepan and add spices. Heat, remove spices and serve. This recipe takes care of eight people.

Hot spiced lemon tea has lots of pick-up. Make it by pouring 5 cups boiling water over 6 teaspoons of black tea. Steep 5 minutes, then strain. Dissolve 1/4 cup sugar in 1/4 cup boiling water. Combine 6 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon and 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves, and add to hot tea. Serve at once, garnished with lemon slices. Serves 6.

top of cake. Chill in refrigerator. Decorate with fresh orange sections just before serving.

Gleaned from an excellent chef, this Lemon Cake-Pie is a good combination of a cream pie and cake. Because of the delicate lemon flavor it will prove interesting to serve for those evenings when friends just drop in for a bit. Made just according to directions, it's guaranteed to bring plenty of encores!

*Lemon Cake-Pie.

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 lemon

Blend the sugar and butter, add beaten egg yolks, milk, flour and the juice and rind of the lemon. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into an unbaked pie-crust. Bake in a slow (325-degree) oven 35 to 40 minutes. The top will be like a sponge cake and underneath there's a soft, firm custard.

Pumpkin pie will never wear out its welcome if you serve it this way. It has extra zest because of the addition of orange juice:

*Pumpkin Pie.

3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon cloves
2 cups cooked canned pumpkin
1 cup cream, rich milk or undiluted evaporated milk
1 cup orange juice

Mix sugar, spices, salt. Add slightly beaten eggs, pumpkin, cream or milk, and orange juice. Pour into an unbaked 10-inch pie shell. Bake at (450 degree) for 10 minutes, and then in a moderate (350-degree) oven for about 50 minutes or until knife comes out clean when inserted in filling. Serve with whipped cream garnished with grated orange peel.

Gingerbread is a favorite for after-dinner bridge type of entertaining. Gingerbread made with boiling water gives the cake a special kind of feathery texture which is certain to charm.

Most of the time you like to serve gingerbread with whipped cream, but you can vary this if you add crushed peppermints to the cream before serving.

*Old-Fashioned Gingerbread.

1/2 cup boiling water
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup molasses
1 beaten egg
1 1/2 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon soda
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon allspice
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Pour water over the shortening and add sugar, molasses and egg. Add sifted dry ingredients and beat until smooth. Bake in a waxed-paper lined square pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 35 minutes. Cool before turning out from pan. For variation, 1 package of semi-sweet chocolate pieces may be added with the dry ingredients if a chocolate-flecked cake is desired.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

JESUS CALLS FOUR DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men.
—Mark 1:17.

Followers of Christ are those who have not counted their goods nor their persons their own, but have willingly yielded all to Him. Obviously many who profess to follow Him have only done so in that measure which will not interfere with their own plans and interests. They need to study this lesson with care.

The call of Christ is one which demands willing and wholehearted obedience.

I. Yielded Possessions (vv. 1-3).

These disciples had already responded to the ministry of Jesus and had followed Him for a time (see John 1:35-4:54), but they did not yet know the fullness of surrender to Christ and had now gone back to their old work of fishing. May they not be typical of many in our day who know the Lord and have for a time followed Him closely, but have again become engrossed in their daily vocation, perhaps just making money?

Jesus was now ready to call them out into a lifetime of service, and the first thing He did was to ask the use of their chief possession, their boat. That was first yielded to Him.

It was not by chance that it was Peter's boat which was just at hand when the Master needed it. Such things do not "just happen." The destinies of men are in the hands of God, and with His children the simplest happening is known to and controlled by Him. He who numbers the hairs on our heads, He who observes the fall of the sparrow, knows about everything that happens to us.

II. Yielded Service (vv. 4-7).

Having completed His teaching by word, Jesus had a special object lesson for Peter and the others concerning the fruitlessness of service apart from His guidance and control, and the blessed results which come from obedience to Him.

Taking them where He found them, He showed the disciples that He was the Master even of their secular vocation of fishing. He is the One who knows more about your business than you do, who can give or withhold His blessing. All that we have has come to us from His hand, and it is all within His control.

This Almighty One was ready to call these fishermen out into the greater business of fishing for men by revealing to them His mighty power to bless and prosper the fisherman—who becomes a fisher of men.

III. Yielded Lives (vv. 8-11).

The giving of their possessions, the yielding of their work into His hands in obedience, led up to His call for the yielding of their lives.

Often we speak of God's claims upon the life of the Christian as though it were the fiat of an autocrat, one who demands his rights. God might well do so, for He has full authority and power over all of us, but He is a gracious God and gently leads His children along to the place where they make their own decision to leave all and follow Him.

The work of God in the world is carried on by men. The joy of proclaiming the gospel was not given to the angels, but to redeemed men and women. Knowing the regenerating grace of God in their own lives, they have been called during all this Christian era to go out to tell others.

In preparation for that ministry our Lord needed yielded lives, which He sought and found in these humble fishermen. They were "not visionaries or dreamers, but were practical men with common sense. They had been disciplined in the school of common toil . . . Though unlearned so far as formal theological training was concerned, these men were teachable. Under the tutelage of the Son of God Himself they received matchless informal training . . . leading to a record of service which the world will never forget. It is that sort of teaching that counts. We, too, may learn in the school of Christ, through a study of His Word, assisted by His Spirit, and through the yielding of our lives to His control" (B. L. Olmstead).

Christ no longer walks this earth to seek and call out disciples as He did these men, but the blessed succession of those of whom it may be said, "They forsook all and followed Him" (v. 11), continues to this day.

We repeat what we have said before, that one of the thrilling things about teaching Sunday school is that somewhere, in some class this next Sunday, God is going to touch the heart of some boy or girl who will be a leader for Him for the next generation.

Household Hints

Water should never be poured on burning fat. It will spread the blaze. Flour will extinguish the blaze.

A raw potato put in soup that has too much salt in it and boiled for 10 minutes will remove the salty taste.

Always cut toast in small squares when making cream toast. It is much easier served cut in this way.

Always store baking powder in a tightly covered container. If it is exposed to the air some of the strength will be lost.

Fruit cake makes a delicious pudding served with either hard or hot sauce. Steam the fruit cake before serving.

Apply paint remover with a brush. When paint begins to curl remove with a putty knife. Remover takes time and cannot be hurried.

The unsightly ring left by cleaning fluids, when used to remove spots, may be avoided by placing under the spot a pad made of thick absorbent cotton.
